"Encouraging students to express their talents is a wonderful community activity," said Ilene Sussman, Hershey's Mill branch manager for First National. "We're hoping everyone in the area takes advantage of this opportunity to see some excellent paintings."

The show will be on display from April 13 until May 12 at the Hershey's Mill branch of First National at 1371 Boot Road, West Chester. The paintings on display at First National were selected by the teachers of the district's 12 schools with three students chosen from each school.
